

Wild about wool, crazy about felt, sometimes laughing, sometimes sighing, everything in it.

What is madness; there are easy times, sometimes difficult to quit, then work is teaching the maker.

Your body and mind might wear out, but felt has such a fascinating language that when you hear it, you hardly remember worries, if the work progresses fine.

Fiber, bed, thread and string, most important is to work in peace. Soap, water, warmth and roll, give the shape to a product. When the roll is opened up, out comes the final result.

Wool has desire, will and power, feltmaker is like mere a guard sometimes those capricious fibers try to fulfill all whims and tricks.

Silk is an excellent friend of wool, felting makes a bridge.

I conjure up the fabric and fibers into one, to become a star on night blue sky.
